

Whispering Seed

Fostering resilience
& hope

As we move through the fifth year following the devastating coup in Myanmar, the challenges for our communities continue to deepen. Unrelenting civil war, escalating armed conflict and the fear of conscription (forced military service) reach all corners of the country. Amidst the rapidly declining political and economic situation, the call for new skills, holistic mindsets and sustainable approaches grows more critical than ever for future generations.

Throughout this turmoil, Whispering Seed has remained steadfast in our mission. Through our two training centers, (Sprouting Seeds & Whispering Earth), we continued to provide essential capacity building and trainings focused on holistic education and sustainability for teachers and youth from across the country.

Responding to crisis in the community

This commitment was put to the test at the end of March, when a catastrophic earthquake struck at the heart of Myanmar, further devastating an already fragile infrastructure.

Thanks to our strong, established network of relationships built through years of teacher training, we were able to act quickly. Whispering Seed was fortunate to channel support directly to some of the hardest-hit areas.

Through this network, we delivered basic food necessities, providing crucial relief for over 200 families.

This effort was a powerful testament to how building community for education also builds a foundation for mutual aid and compassion in times of greatest need.

Your support makes this possible. Together, we are not only educating future leaders but also sustaining hope and providing tangible help where it's needed most. Amidst challenges and uncertainty, we continue our work planting seeds of resilience and renewal here in Myanmar. Thank you for being part of our community.

With gratitude,
Whispering Seed Family
